Saturday 3 October
2.30pm

Followed by Refreshments in Hall

Come and be entertained by singers and musicians re-living the West Gallery era, with lively, folk-infused songs, characters and dance tunes.

Join us for a glimpse of English village life at Harvest time.

The West Gallery era covered the 18th/19th centuries, when music was sung by local church choirs ('quires') and village musicians from wooden galleries built at the western end of English parish churches. The choirs also sang secular music around the villages.
